

Dear FCC,

I am an air one station listener, and supporter. There are not really any other stations out there that send a good message, support our communities, and offer the good Christian music like air one does. The air one station serves me by providing an alternative to the normal everyday music, which often times sends a poor message to our communities and young people. If air one were to be displaced by a Low Power FM broadcaster providing other programming, our community as well as myself would be at a great loss. Air one has wholesome values and has a positive and encouraging impact on communities all across the US. Air ones service is in the public interest because it is non-offensive (no cussing, good clean lyrics, healthy speaking messages to our communities.. etc..) and gives parents the choice of giving there kids something better to listen to that actually rocks!

If air one were to not reach our communities we would be at a great loss, for our children, young adults, and to anyone who needs encouragement. I wish air ones stations were even more powerful then they are, and were able to reach more people, especially with clarity. I beg you to reconsider your current plan on Low Power FM broadcast service.

Thank you for your time...

Sincerely,

Joshua A. Keangy
